NOISEMAKERS UNDER 25 PANEL

BY DAVID HERSHKOVITS

SPECIAL PAPER EVENT -- PLEASE TAKE NOTE

Please join Paper editor David Hershkovits and five wonderful panelists under the age of 25 who are making noise in the New York cultural firmament. The panel will be held on Thursday, September 29th at the School of Visual Arts, 209 E. 23rd St., 7 p.m..

Our Fantabulous Five are:

Faran Krentcil: The Boston native and Duke graduate moved to New York in 2003. In just two years the 24-year-old has become Fashion Week Daily's hot girl-about-town, a journalist who has the attention of New York's biggest culture makers.

Baruch Shemtov: The 18-year-old it-boy designer of men's ties is a Ramaz High School graduate and called the Upper East Side home before hauling off to Harvard in September.

Jakob Lodwick: He's one of the four brains behind collegehumor.com, a leading website and marketing company targeting the college demographic, and is 24 years old. Born in Baltimore, he graduated from the Rochester Institute of Technology where he majored in New Media and Information Technology. He moved to New York in 2004.

Ali Kay: The 22-year-old New York entrepreneur, fashion designer, and Columbia University International Politics student moved to New York in 2002. Her first fashion line "Keep Me" will be in stores next spring.

Drew Elliott: The 24-year-old Paper Magazine Marketing and Promotions Director and one-third of glam party promoting trio, "The Trinity," was born in Bloomington, Indiana and moved to New York in 2000 where he attended NYU. He graduated from the Gallatin School of Individualized Studies and got his start interning at Paper four years ago.
